

Professor Jonathan Zittrain, Co-Founder, Director and Faculty Chair,
Harvard University Berkman Center for Internet & Society

“A commission created by the Congress, with a membership drawn from every interested quarter in the debates around consumer technology and law enforcement, is a very good idea. It could help work through not only current issues, but future ones this is a rapidly evolving field which deserves a thorough look and deep understanding before as far-reaching legislation is considered.”