

Former Director of National Intelligence & Former Director of NSA
Mike McConnell Supports McCaul Warner Commission

"The nation, and increasingly, the globe have become digitally dependent based on the information technology revolution and our laws, policies and procedures have not kept pace to address the many conflicting priorities. With increasing threats to security and concerns about privacy, is imperative that a legislatively directed commission representing all points of view be convened to engage in dialogue to find and recommend the best solutions for the nation and the international community. This will involve informed discussion and compromise to discover the best recommendations for our lawmakers to consider."

- Mike McConnell, former Director of National Intelligence & former Director of NSA